Scholarships Go Totaling $16,080

Scholarship awards amounting to $16,080 are being made to students from about 25 counties in West and Middle Tennessee for attendance at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch this fall.

Of this amount $10,830 has already been awarded to about 60 students by UTMB Scholarship Committee. A total of $1,500 in additional awards will be made as soon as applications can be processed, according to Professor Lloyd King, committee chairman.

In addition to the scholarships awarded by the UTMB committee, about 16 U-T General Alumni Association scholarships and awards amounting to approximately $3,750 are being processed and will be announced later.

Scholarships ranging from $100 to $460 have been awarded.

Greeks Achieve Highest Grades

Sorority and fraternity members at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch have compiled a higher overall scholastic average for the winter quarter than did non-sorority and non-fraternity students, according to data released by the Dean of Students H. B. Smith's office.

The overall average for all fraternities and sororities was 2.45, while non-sorority and non-fraternity students compiled an overall of 2.24.

The entire university overall average is 2.28, Dean Smith said.

Society Planned By UTMB Faculty As Honor Group

The first honor society at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch is being organized, according to Vice President Paul Meek.

Vice President Meek said the honor society, which is being organized by a committee of faculty members, will have the purpose of recognizing and promoting scholarship.

The society will be composed of the faculty members and UTMB students of any curriculum who have excelled scholastically. Membership in the society would be eligible to junior students in the top 20 of the junior class, senior students of the top eight of the senior class, and faculty members with certain undergraduate requirements.

The society will be set up with the standards and will operate similar to Phi Kappa Phi, a national honorary organization.

After the progress and acceptability required by Phi Kappa Phi has been achieved, the honor society will be eligible to become affiliated with the national organization, said Vice President Meek.

The committee will meet Wednesday night, April 29, to propose a constitution and by-laws for the honor society.

April 29-May 1 Are Dates For 'Come Blow Your Horn'

Are you married? Then you're a bum, or so Mr. Baker, father of a 30 year-old playboy and a 21 year-old rebel seems to think in Vanguard Theatre's latest and final hit of the season, "Come Blow Your Horn," to be presented April 19-May 1.

Homer Kemp is in his element as the extraordinarily loud, hyper-nervous and domineering father, owner of the world's largest artificial fruit business which at least one of his sons is ruining for him.

It is almost impossible to imagine the scrapes and scraps that Alan Baker, played by George Shankle, and his women, primarily Peggy (Mary Jane Pace) who is the beautiful but dumb blonde from upstairs and Connie (Lynn Page), the one who is somehow different from all the rest, get involved in. On his off days, the ones in which he has to work, he succeeds in losing more money for the company than he gains. As he puts it, "Father expects nothing from me, so that's what I give him."

When Buddy, Leigh Grinalds, the just-turned 21 year-old who has already had two years of college, been in the army and drinks scotch and ginger ale moves away from home, which the boys refer to as the "museum of expensive furniture," into Alan's plush bachelor apartment, the ball really starts rolling. Plans Completed For Legislators

Plans are being completed for a luncheon meeting to be held by the Tennessee Legislative Council at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch, May 4.

Members of the committee and their wives will arrive on campus around 12:15 after being entertained by Senator Gilbert Parker at Reelfoot Lake.

The committee members will be guests of the cafeteria under the direction of Mrs. Doris Latta at a luncheon at 12:30.

UTMB students eating in the cafeteria will be served sack lunches in order to make cafeteria facilities available to the members of the Tennessee General Assembly.

U-T President Andrew D. Holt, Dr. Ed Boling, vice-president for development and Joe Johnson, assistant to Dr. Holt, are expected to attend this meeting along with other members of the UTMB administrative staff.

In the afternoon session the members of the council will be informed about UTMB's mission in higher education in Tennessee. The members of the council will be interested in how UTMB was started, its development up to the present, and the projected programs relating to buildings, academic programs, staff and additional lands.

The main objectives of the institution will be stated to the group as a basis for a quick estimate of whether or not the objectives are being attained.

The miniature campus plan will be on display at the cafeteria.

gets Alan's women, wears his clothes, uses his name, drinks his liquor and eats his food, their father fires both of them, the curator of the museum--their mother, nearly has a nervous breakdown, their father disowns them, the wrong girls wander in and out at the right time and on and on and on with each moment funnier than the last.

Although the cast is quite small each member does a most excellent job, as does student director Jim Horde. One of the most hilarious scenes in the entire play takes place when veteran actress Charlotte Cunningham, the boy's mother is alone in their apartment and the phone starts ringing. After a frantic and fruitless search for a pencil she tries to remember the messages, getting them completely jumbled and driving the whole audience into near panic with her antics.

The setting is one of the best yet at Vanguard Theatre with built-in bar and all the trimmings in the New York City bachelor apartment.

Not only does the play have some very catchy lines as well as plenty of comedy throughout, but also a surprise element with the appearance of Aunt Gussie. There are four Aunt Gussies, one for each night of the performance and there's just no telling where, when or which one of them may appear.

Receiving nominations for the office of secretary-treasurer were: Marita Moseman, a senior from Memphis; Lina Wells, a sophomore from Bells; and Sandra Bullington, a sophomore from Martin.

Campaign speeches are scheduled for today at 4 p.m. Concerning the student election, Professor Henry Allison, ASA sponsor said, "I do hope that all students will become interested in the association and regardless of whom they vote for that they will vote."

Library Building Plans Discussed

Professor William H. Jesse, director of libraries, U-T Knoxville, and Dr. Edward J. Boling, U-T vice president for development, are meeting today, April 28, on the University of Tennessee Martin Branch campus to discuss plans for a new library building.

Gene Abel, assistant to Professor Jesse, and Henry Morse, campus planner, U-T Knoxville, will also be present to discuss the construction of a library building which has top priority as the next educational unit.

The anticipated starting date for construction of the library is in the summer of 1965, according to Dr. Paul Meek, vice president of the university.

Mr. Morse will stay over tomorrow, April 29, to discuss with Miss Harriet Fulton and others interested in the university building needs and particularly which need should be proclaimed to the next session of the legislation.

Four Year ROTC Planned For Fall

An advanced program in Reserve Officers Training Corp will be offered at The University of Tennessee Martin Branch next year.

Major Milton S. Killen, associate professor of military science, stated that there is much enthusiasm about the program and preparations for next year are already under way in the Military Science Department.

In a meeting with candidates Major Killen said that each one is now faced with a new challenge in that he is preparing now to lead. He also called for an all out effort from the beginning to develop the top ROTC unit in the southeast.

Members of the Military Science Department feel that the caliber and eagerness of the young men at this college will prove this to be a reality, Major Killen said.

A total of 32 candidates have indicated a desire to enter the program at UTMB, according to department records. This number far exceeds the expectation of the Military Science Department. There is a possibility of even more candidates with transfers from other colleges, Major Killen said.

ASA Selections Important

The all important annual election of officers of the All Students Association for next year will be held next Tuesday, one week from today. Also the proposed changes in the ASA Constitution will be voted on again.

Candidates were scheduled to make campaign speeches this afternoon and for the remainder of the week campaigning will be hot and heavy as a number of UTMB students seek three very important positions of leadership on our campus.

ASA officers have been referred to often as "unpaid faculty members" meaning that they devote a great deal of their time and effort to the job for which they were elected.

Each candidate, in running for the office of his choice has indicated that he is willing to give his best to the task; the decision of which ones will lead UTMB next year is up to us, the student body.

Let's don't make this election like most of the others with only a very small percentage of the ASA, which is the student body, voting. The candidates need our support. We need to support them. The constitution needs to be ratified. Vote next Tuesday and think before you do it!

Students Present Chemistry Paper At Academy Of Science Meeting

Dr. Carl R. Wasmuth, Jenny Ladd, and Charles Harding represented The University of Tennessee Martin Branch at the Western Region meeting of the Tennessee Academy of Science Collegiate Division at Memphis State University recently.

While at the meeting they presented a paper concerning methods they used for gaining certain useful information concerning hydroxymethanesulfonic acid. The sodium salt of this acid is a compound used in the dye and plastic industries. The hydroxymethanesulfonic acid ionizes to form a singly charged form and a doubly charged form and a Beckman Ultraviolet Spectrophotometer can be used to determine the percentage of each ion present.

By so doing the characteristics of the acid in a particular reaction can be predetermined. Through their efforts the group was able to determine the second acid dissociation constant of the acid.

The Beckman UV Spectrophotometer and a Beckman Model "G" pH Meter were obtained by UTMB last summer

Speech And Drama Group Hold Contest On Campus

Approximately 135 students participated in the contest of the District Two Tennessee High School Speech and Drama League held on campus recently, according to Professor Ed M. Chenette, chairman.

First place winners in the 10 divisions of the contest were students from Milan, Paris Grove High, Jackson, Dresden and Obion Central.

through a National Science Foundation grant.

Miss Ladd is a member of the sophomore class, and Mr. Harding is a senior presently student teaching here in Martin. Dr. Wasmuth said that two other students George Shankle and Joe O'Connor are now engaged in projects requiring independent research as did the one mentioned above.

Freshman Enters Singing Contest

Sandra Archer, University of Tennessee Martin Branch freshman majoring in music education, took part in the auditions held by the National Association of Teachers of Singing in Jackson recently.

Students of teachers in West Tennessee who belong to this organization were in competition, with the winner to go on to state, regional and national auditions.

Sandra was entered in the college division. Although she had little hope of being chosen against many who were seniors and had years of study behind them, she made a very fine showing, according to Miss Harriet Fulton, chairman of the UTMB music section.

She appeared before four judges and the combined rating was "excellent" with one judge giving her a superior rating.

Sandy said that she gained much from their constructive criticism and from the experience.

Three songs were presented with J. T. Patterson serving as her accompanist.

Nursery School Good Place To See If You Like Children

BY ERNIE MCCALL

Have you ever considered taking a course in which you could become familiar with the unique ways of children--their honesty, loving, hating, smiling, crying, biting, wetting?

Girls enrolled in Home Economics 452 have experienced all these actions in their work with the three and four year olds who attend the University Nursery School. Home Economics instructors Miss Barbara Norman and Mrs. Fairy Dodd are in charge of operating the program.

Home economics majors help supervise the youngsters as they play, eat, sing, rest and listen to stories while learning a few of the fundamental habits of life. The "student teachers" push them in swings, play ball with them, prevent fights and separate the ones they fail to prevent!

One day an ingenious young fellow discovered worms in the ground! His discovery was followed by a lovely worm digging ceremony and with one of the teachers trying to explain how worms crawl. That day each child got to carry home a can containing his catch.

Another day the nursery school goes found and buried a bird (a dead bird, in case you are wondering). The burial was concluded with the construction of a monument for the deceased.

The student instructors relate that the children are very prone to telling a bit of fiction now and then. Just last week, one child reported to a teacher that she went to the circus the night before and saw clowns, lions, tigers, elephants, monkeys and a milkman.

One properly informed little man said his dog Herman (Tiger in real life) had been run over; "Herman didn't know not to play in the street."

Whether the three or four-year old is declaring that she has three children of her own, stirring the coffee with an airplane wing, grabbing an instructor by the arm at the end of a finger painting session or just quietly eating clay, he or she never ceases to produce learning situations for interested college students.

Music Festival Attracts Piano And Voice Pupils

In the vocal solo event, Central High of Memphis had five students rating superior. The following schools each had one student rating superior: South Fulton, Adamsville, Dresden, Mason Hall, and Union City.

Central High and Union City each had five students rating excellent; Paris and Trenton high schools had two, with one each from Fulton and Bartlett.

In the piano division of the festival 10 private teachers entered their students as follows:

Nursery school children engage in many creative activities under the supervision of student teachers taking Home Economics

452 taught by Miss Barbara Norman. The nursery school is a laboratory of human relationships.

Men's Tennis Team Wins Match And Drops Three In Fortnight

In the past two weeks, the tennis team has won one match while losing three.

The Vols thumped Bethel College 7-2 on the Vol courts, April 16, for their only win.

Taking five out of six singles matches, the home boys had the game in the bag even before entering the doubles events. However, the Vols won two out of three in the final session bringing their total wins to seven.

Jim Newcombe, number one man for the Vols, was again in the winners circle. The accurate captain has lost only one singles match during the entire season.

In the doubles Newcombe and Caldwell continued their winning ways by defeating Kimmons and Wiman 11-9 and 7-5. Dial and Gardner, however, lost to Higdon and Carruthers in the doubles 6-4, 4-6, and 6-4. Tim Mullaly, who replaced Moore Landers, and Tom Hay topped Estes and Drinkall in the final match of the afternoon.

Earlier in the week the Vols met tough opposition from Austin Peay State and fell 6-3 in a match at Martin Tuesday.

Newcombe was defeated by Fred Alsop 7-5 and 6-3, Gardner fell to Ralph Grant 6-1 and 7-5, and Buzz Caldwell was topped by Bobby Bell 6-1 and 6-2. Moore Landers and Tom Dial accounted for the Vols' only singles victories. Landers downed Rocky Cobb, while Dial tripped Frank Pasteur 9-7, 2-6, and 6-2. Tom Hay, UTMB, lost to Ronald Fry 6-2, and 6-3.

In the doubles Newcombe and Landers won over Alsop and Grant 6-4 and 6-2, but Gardner and Caldwell were topped by Bell and Cobb 6-3 and 8-6. Dial and Hay also lost 6-2 and 6-4, to Pasteur and Fry.

Vols Lose Golf Match To Austin Peay Govs.

The Vols lost a tough golf match to Austin Peay at the Fulton, Ky., greens recently.

Playing without the services of their first man, UTMB's golfers lost close decisions in a triangular match held Friday, April 17, at Florence State involving the Lions and Alabama College.

Charles Jester, who has been playing in the first position, was unable to make the trip. He was able, however, to play in the line-up against Austin Peay Monday, April 20, when the Vols met Austin Peay at the Fulton, Ky., greens.

others have minor injuries, but they are expected to play, Coach Carroll said.

Also, for the first time, the team captains for next season were selected by a team vote this spring. Deslonde Collins will be the captain of next year's squad. Kenny Dickson and Scotty Boehringer will be alternate captains.
